SOUTHERN CAMPUS

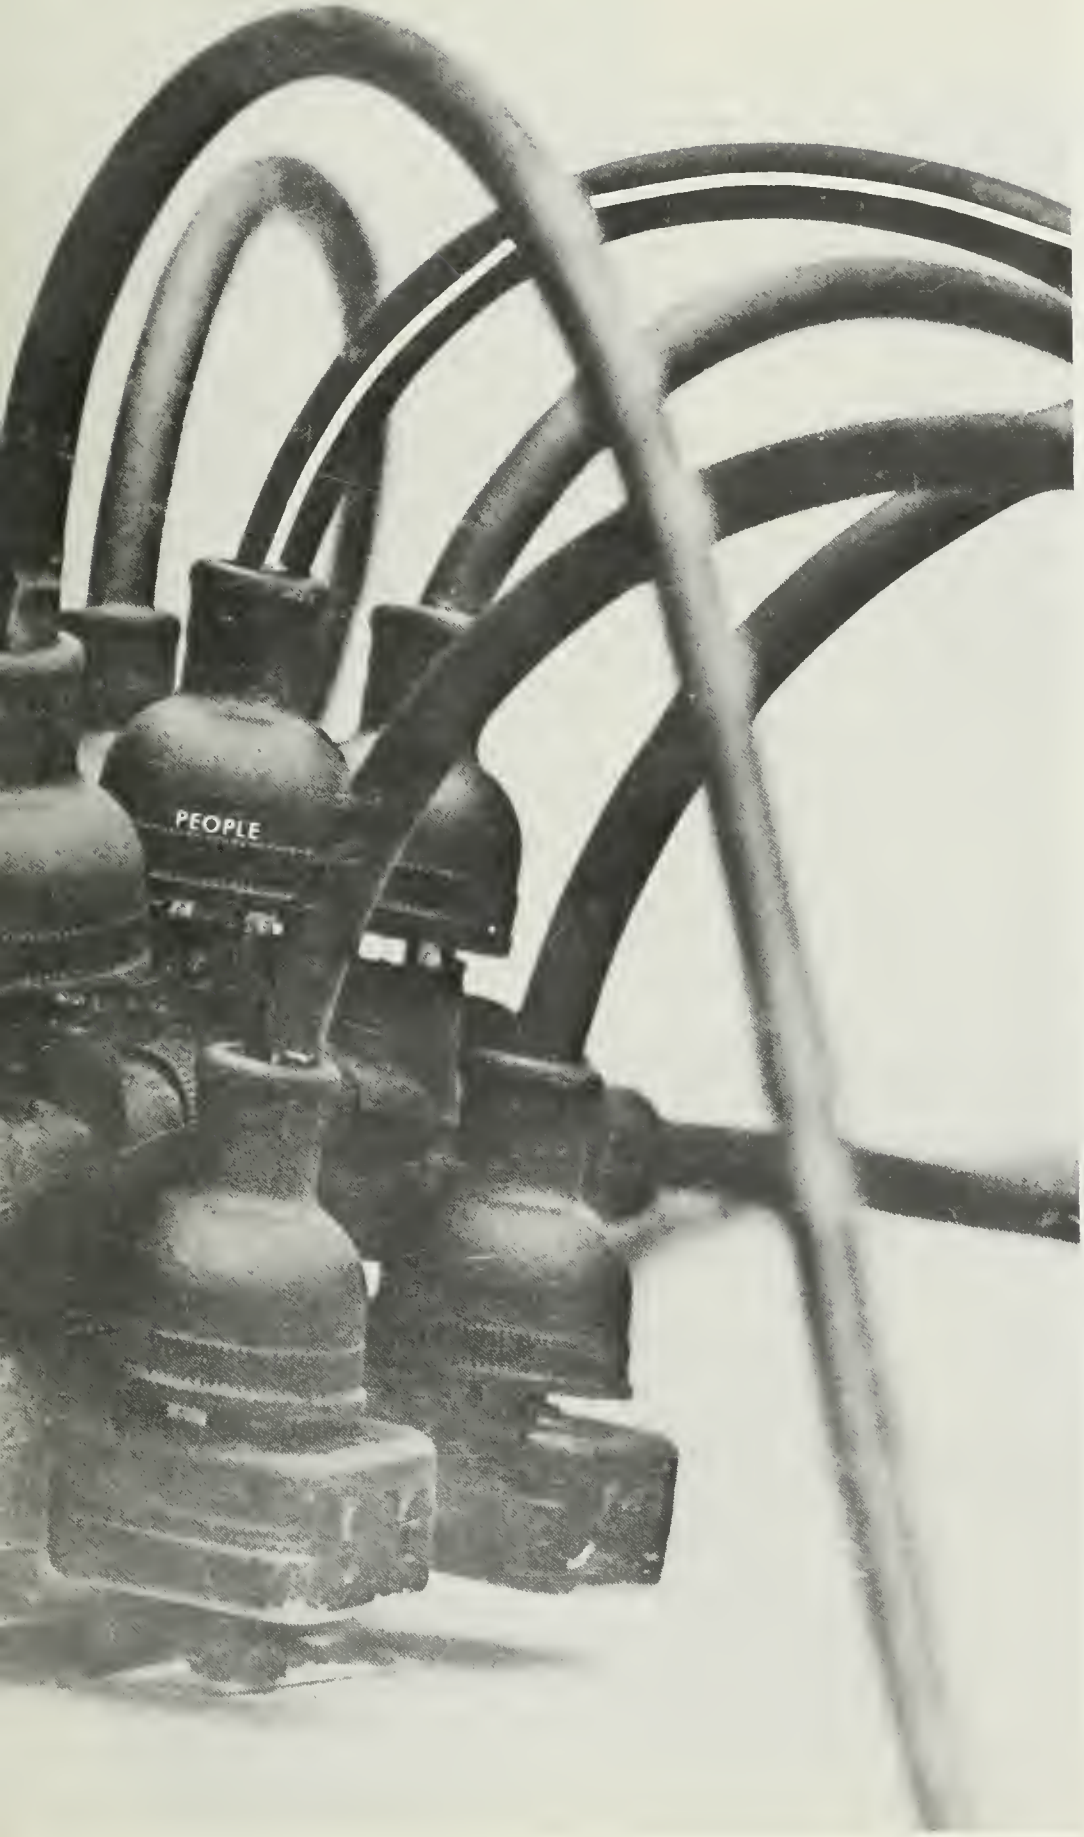
Let all of us face the facts. The yearbook, that one time valuable instrument of memories is on its way to its own grave memory.

It is true that the value of the yearbook is at its lowest point at the time of its purchase. But the longer it is with you the more value it has. These days, very few people are willing to experience the long-term joy that a yearbook is capable of giving.

I was looking at the 1938 Southern Campus the other day and it was a highly unusual and amusing experience. When you look at a yearbook that old, you seem to acquire a flavor of the era, even though it was before your time. You can see how the rapidly changing modes of dress looked at that juncture. You can see how minute the campus was in comparison with today's sprawling university. You can see when the word apathy was hardly used because it couldn't be properly applied to any section of the campus. If you were interested in sports you could look up players that you used to read about and ask yourself where have they gone. And if you were going to school in 1938 you would have the opportunity to see how you looked (provided of course that you were in the book). As the old cliche goes: "you've come a long way, baby."

This year as in years past, the yearbook staff is endeavoring to bring to all interested parties a photographic and journalistic chronicle of the 1972-73 school year. You may even want to look at it in this light. For many people, the yearbook is the only way to recall all those events and all those good times that you never participated in.

Didn't your mother ever tell you that you were supposed to have fun in college because you were going to have to support yourself and all other hanger's on for the rest of your life?

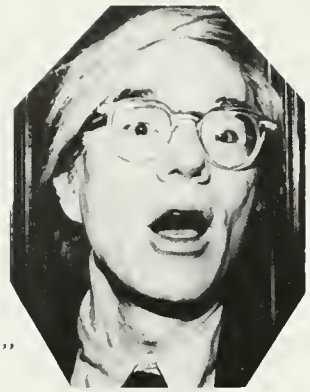


PEOPLE

PEOPLE PEOPLE

People always seem to be complaining about being known only as a series of letters and numbers. Of course these people would be the first to tell you of their fate as well as who they really are. A camera was provided with remote control for self-portraits and people were given the opportunity to describe their own uniqueness in words and photographs.

PEOPLE PEOPLE



"Pinocchio who?"

"Vulnerable and I miss my mommy and daddy."

"I eat nothing but chocolate yogurt."

"Show me the way to the nearest lobotomy."

"Wanna cookie?"

"I see myself as a huge blob of potential."

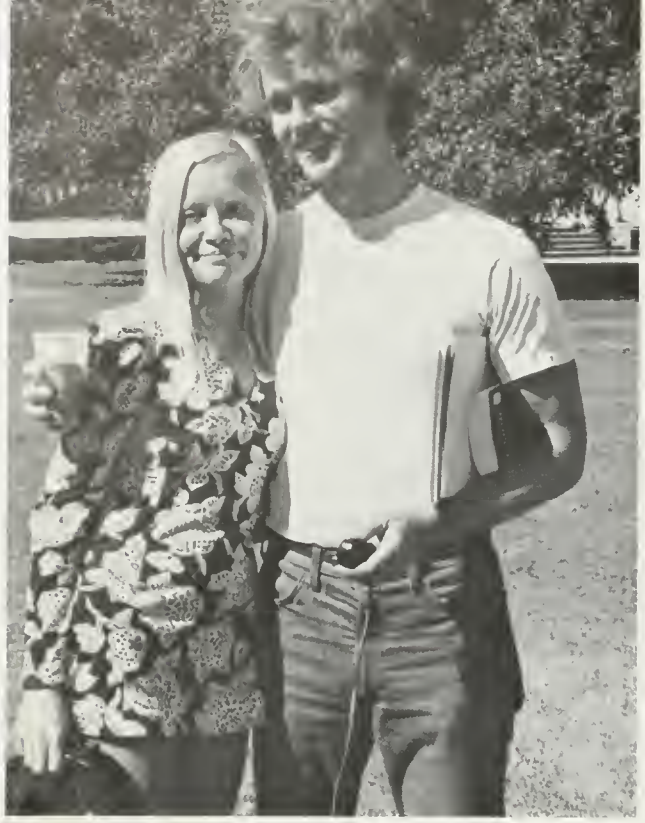
"A man of taste, discrimination, and discernment. The kind of man who reads PLAYBOY."

"A pickle in every chicken and a 2¢ corned beef in every pot."

"I see myself as a kindergartener who can't find the bathroom."

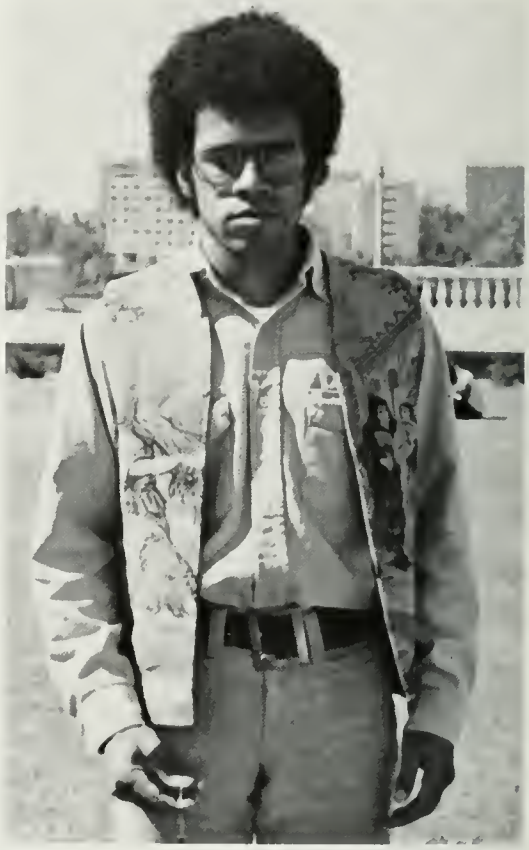
"Now that we're divorced I miss our Friday nite fights."

"I'm a student of the arts. Watch out for my smile."



"We see ourselves as the campus couple."

"Eye to you, bub."

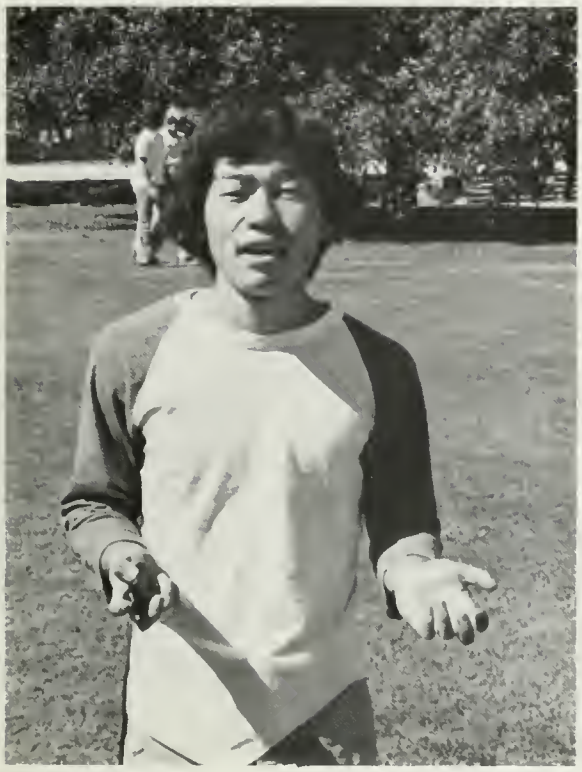


"I'm a half Negro-Mexican with black curly hair. I wear an earring in my left ear. I have a very rotten personality and I love music. But even though that's what's wrong with me, I'm as cool as hell."

"Honesty, integrity, and a whole lot of bullshit."

"Charming, intellectually brilliant, all personality, sensitive, and black is beautiful baby."

"Three friends questioning their own reality."



"I have no choice. I'm a ten thumbed pastie."

"We are the committee for the abolition of committees."

"I'm a member of the better half — Right on?"

"A Pragerism."

"Poet."

"This is what happens when the sky opens and 3,000 pounds of lime jello falls."

"I have put aside my world travels to complete my major here. I am also studying the ladies."

"I'm a college student concerned with the utility of discipline and other bullshit."

"One out of 29,651 students is me. The odds are bad, but I think it's worth it despite."

"Jaded blue!"

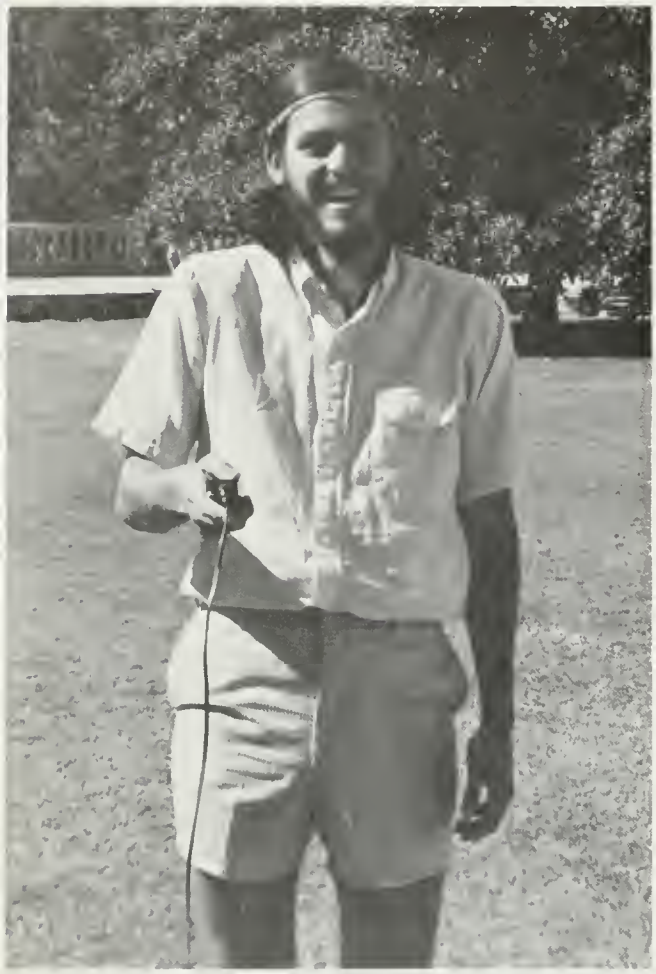
"I didn't come to school just to eat lunch."

"Heavy is as heavy does . . . therefore I am the heaviest of them all. I weigh therefore I am."

"Monsters."

"I am a unicorn at the edge of the woods. Do you see me, or do you just think you do? Does it matter?"

"I am a combination of a half-assed student, yogi, dancer, businessman, and I am 95 per cent vegetarian."



"The answer to a girl's dream."

"A sudden tree or standing stone, that none have seen but I alone."

"Help! My soul has been captured by this evil machine of the University."

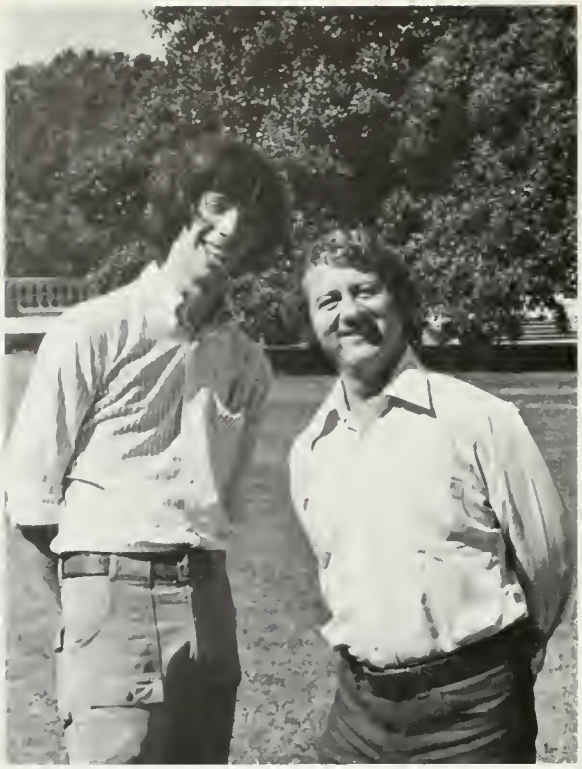
"I love my bike."

"I'm Danny, fly me to anywhere you damn please."

"Looks are deceiving. I'm an erotic beast."

"I am sly, slick, and wicked, and crazy as a mother . . ."

"It's a nice day on the UCLA campus. No smog. Barometer readings down."



"Ace photographer with ripod."

"I'm an animal husbandry graduate looking for an animal husband."

"Forever on a diet."

"Only as long as we can laugh at ourselves are we nobody else."

"I'm extravivaristic."

"What, me worry? After all those funky parking tickets, aspirins from Student Health, tear gas from spring, upset stomachs from the Terrace Room, bad grades and incompletes, gee, I guess UCLA can be fun."

"Cool breeze."

"Why did the turkey cross the road? . . . He thought he was a chicken."

"I am a new student on campus but I assure you you're going to hear from me. I may be your next president."

"Some have described me as forward, some say I'm backward; my friends think of me as generous, my enemies probably try hard not to think of me at all."

"Basically, an intelligent but self-critical optimist suffering from delusions of grandeur."

"I'm out to lunch."

"I wake up on many a Saturday morning not knowing where I am or what I did the night before."

"How do I see myself? Most of the time by looking at my reflection — otherwise there's not too much there."

"I find myself living happily in mental fantasy since the realization of practical aspirations is necessarily bound to disappointment. The entertainment of one day's dream is pinned and flattened by one analytic introspection."

"One of the most important movements of our time, and one to which I dedicate myself, is that of women's liberation."

"Right now I feel used, abused, and tossed aside."

"Rally committee is a blast."

Awhile back, the Southern Campus office received a small white envelope slipped under the door. The message inside was cryptic but simple. It instructed us to answer the phone at 4:38 pm. The staff was mystified but when the phone rang at that time the editor answered the phone to a handkerchief laden, stuffy-nosed voice. With curt poiliteness the voice instructed us to include a tribute to the great LaFong. After finding out about LaFong and his accomplishments we consented to include this tribute. In addition, the here-to-fore anonymous LaFong softens up a bit as, in his own words, he lets us verbally peek at some of his closely guarded secrets.

So Long, LaFong

The forty-nine cent Sanford Sharpie that has been providing cartoons for the Daily Bruin since 1965 is dry. The show is over, the monkey is dead

I was an enigma. Even though I had more sports cartoons reproduced than anyone in the history of the school paper less than a dozen folks knew my true identity. For several reasons I signed my drawings with the name of a "chump" mentioned but never seen in the 1934 W.C. Fields movie It's a Gift: LaFong, Carl LaFong. Primarily, I did not want a certain portion of the faculty to know that I was doodling for the Bruin.

My first cartoons were labored. Each was drawn differently And each one took me all night to complete. I wanted every line and gesture to be perfect. Often I would write the same caption 30 or more times before I pasted down the one I thought was printed best. My Bruin first looked like a grizzly, then Snoopy, Pooh, Mickey Mouse, and eventually the Hathaway shirt man. I gave him his eye-patch on October 22, 1966. I figured my drawings would be very forgettable if I didn't give my bear a gimmick, or trademark. A year or two earlier Sally Brown of the Peanuts strip had sported an eye-patch to clear up emblyopia. Snoopy naturally swiped the patch and wore it for several days masquerading as a pirate. Charles Schulz soon abandoned the patch, when Sally's vision improved, so I seized it. Consequently, though my drawing style was different each year, the patch remained the same, and it always identified a LaFong cartoon.

Cartoons for Friday's paper were always due on Wednesday. Every Tuesday night I sat with a stack of paper and watched sweat pop out of my skin while I went through the stack making unusable drawings. Eventually I became satisfied with the appearance of the Bruin and settled down to quicker applications of my wit. My drawings were always immaculate and well composed but often the sports editor treated them like Sweeny the butcher. They hacked them and rearranged them and reversed them.

LaFong is finished. After ten years of drawing, I may have seen my last printed cartoon. Two years before I entered UCLA I was the Conestoga cartoonist at Greenhills (Ohio) High School. In 1965 I won the Dayton Daily News trophy for Ohio High School Cartoon of the Year. For 8 years at UCLA tens of thousands of folks have followed my little Bruin, perhaps more than will ever see my nudes and landscapes and field hares. I want to earn a living with my drawings because I love to draw

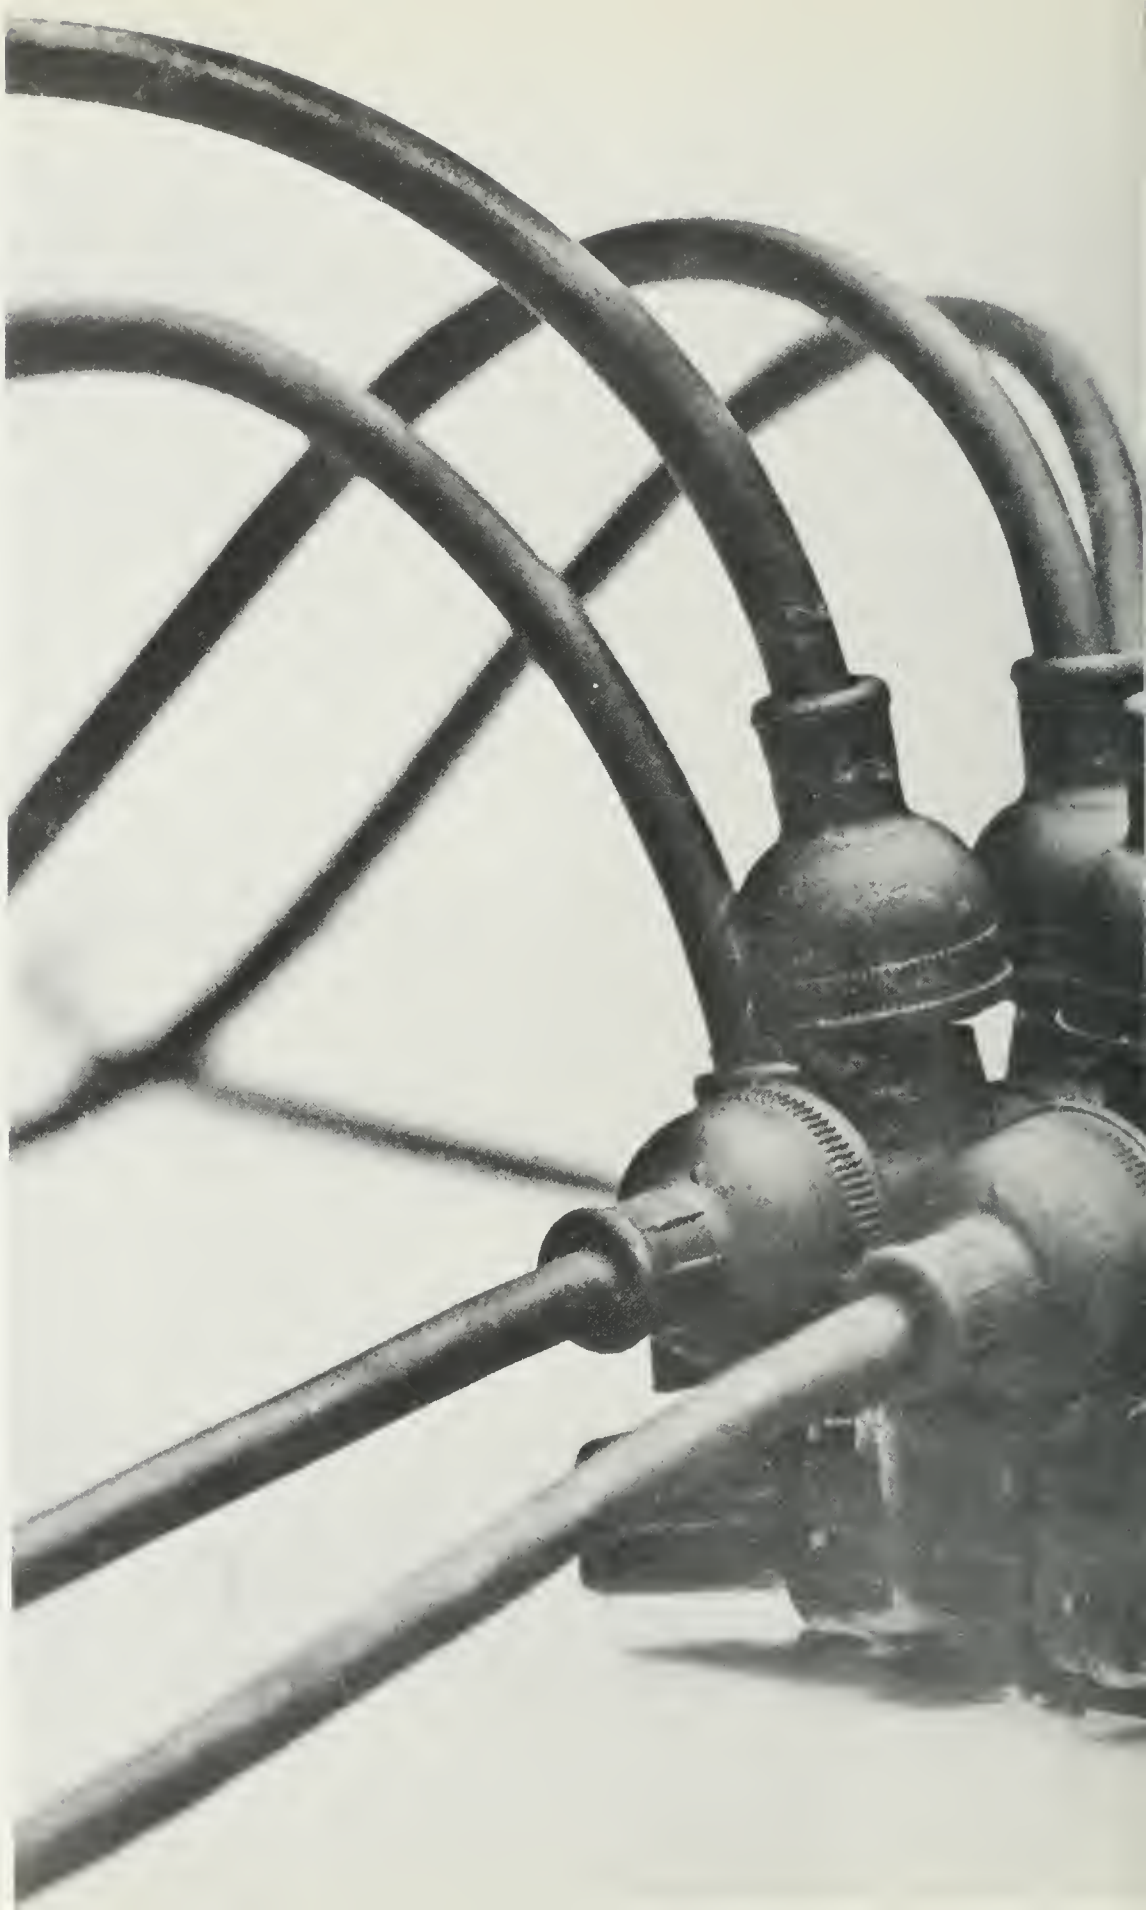
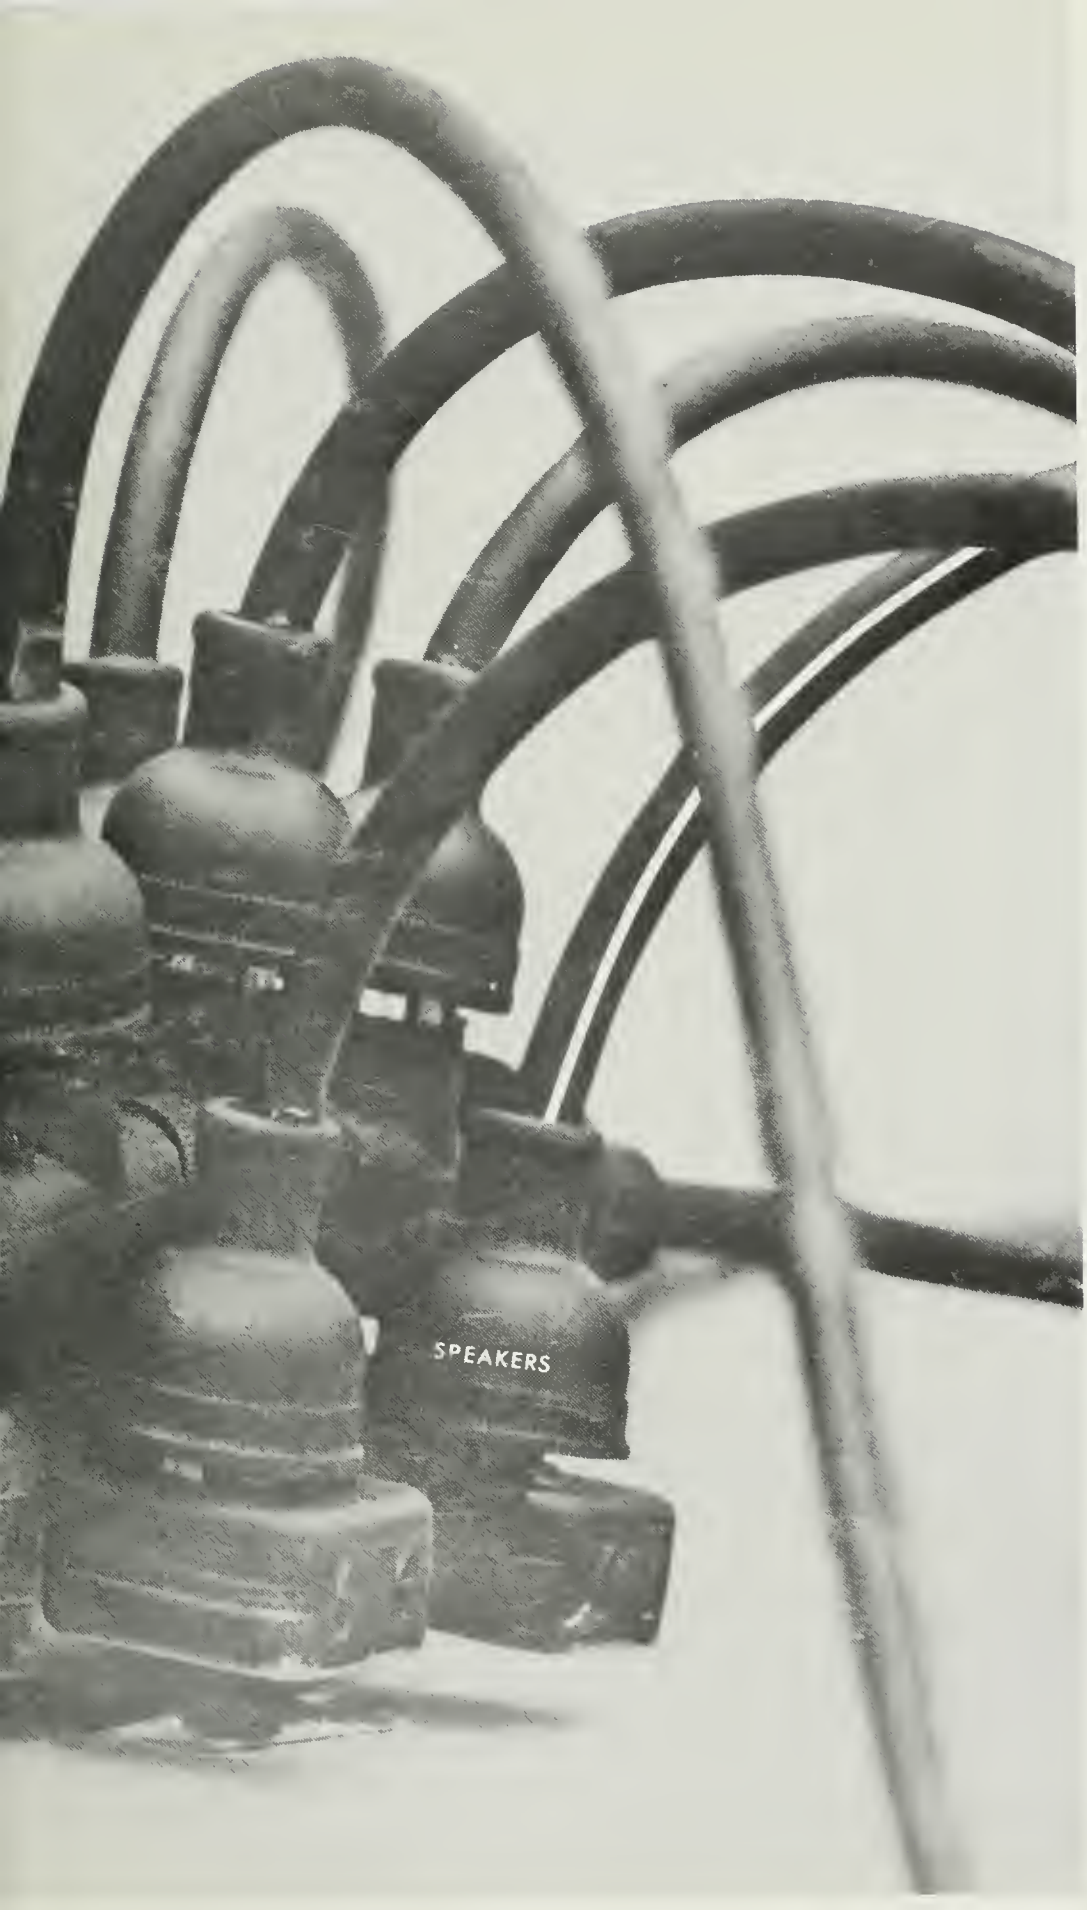
THANK YOU HARRY E. MORRIS

Harry E. Morris is retiring after a 48 year relationship with UCLA. At the age of sixty-five Mr. Morris will be leaving in May.

Mr. Morris was a UCLA student from 1929-1932 when the school was still located an its old Vermont Ave. campus. In his junior year he began serving as event manager of UCLA basketball games at the Olympic Auditorium, handling every aspect of the arena management, from tickets to ushers. In 1933 he was made Ticket Manager, a position he held for ten years. Since 1944, Mr. Morris has been Director of ASUCLA Publications, supervising the Daily Bruin, Southern Campus and all other student and sport program media.

The Yearbook staff would just like to say thanks and express our appreciation for all the support that Mr. Morris has given us. Countless times, Mr. Morris spoke out in favor of Southern Campus, and in many ways, was responsible for the yearbook lasting this long.





SPEAKERS

Lunchtime was never boring while the speakers program was operating. Countless times during the school year one's bologna sandwich was garnished with the thoughts of Cesar Chavez, Ramsey Clark, the Credibility Gap and many other notables. This past year saw a national election take place and Jeff Grunfeld, Speakers Program Chairman couldn't be happier. His job as a recruiter was never easier. Many candidates were eager to accept Jeff's invitation and as a result the noon schedule of the speakers program was constantly filled. But political figures were not the only ones to appear on the campus. The entertainment and sports world were well represented and as it turned out, this year's program was one of the most successful ever.

FINE ARTS

CAUTION
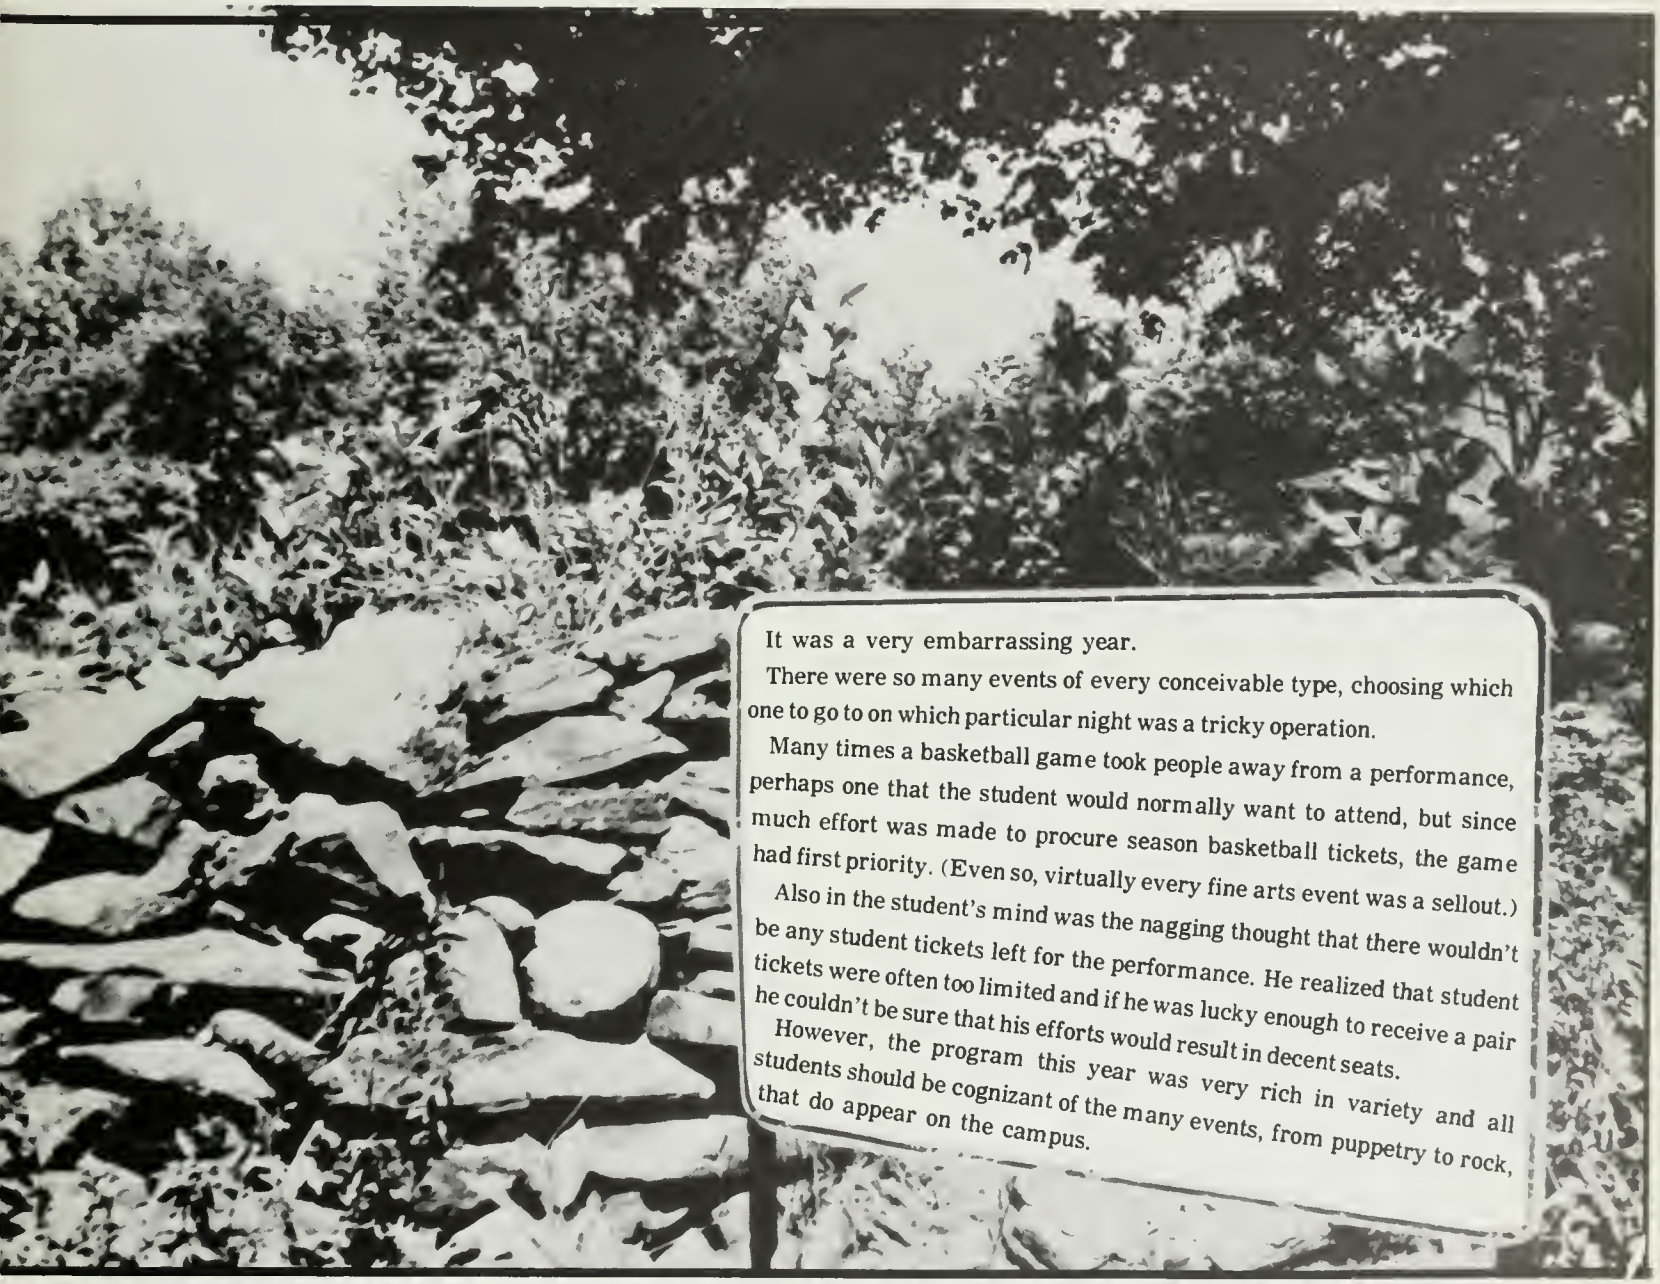
AT PLAY



It was a very embarrassing year.

There were so many events of every conceivable type, choosing which one to go to on which particular night was a tricky operation.

Many times a basketball game took people away from a performance, perhaps one that the student would normally want to attend, but since much effort was made to procure season basketball tickets, the game had first priority. (Even so, virtually every fine arts event was a sellout.)

Also in the student's mind was the nagging thought that there wouldn't be any student tickets left for the performance. He realized that student tickets were often too limited and if he was lucky enough to receive a pair he couldn't be sure that his efforts would result in decent seats.

However, the program this year was very rich in variety and all students should be cognizant of the many events, from puppetry to rock, that do appear on the campus.

CAL TJADER

Cal Tjader versus Schoenberg Hall

Schoenberg Hall was the undisputed victor. The Cal Tjader Quintet never had a chance. The combination of distorted amplification and horrid acoustics obliterated any sense of balance, subtle harmonic manipulation, and even melody line. A gross injustice to a fine ensemble.

Let's hear it for featured soloist Mike Wolfe who came back to play well for all his old classmates.

UCLA DANCE COMPANY

One weekend, the UCLA Dance Company presented three new choreographies and one recreation of "Partita V," 1942 Doris Humphrey dance. "Partita V" was directed here by Marion Scott, who was among the original cast of "Partita V." Doris Humphrey describes "Partita" as "a bit of whipped cream." It appeared that this whipped cream was either one day old, or it was vintage seventeenth-century whipped cream.

"Events and Reverberations" by UCLA Dance Company director Carol Scothorn was definitely twentieth century and a good deal beyond. The entire piece was dramatically cohesive, and each movement, even the flicking of a finger, was fully motivated for the dancers.

In "Events" Kathe Coperman's duet with cellist Denis Brott was not only articulated excitingly and honestly by Miss Copperman, but it was a fine example of the possibilities in combining two artistic disciplines in an on-stage situation. The musician was not just providing music for a dance, but became an integral part of the choreography when a relationship was established between musician and dancer by Miss Copperman's physical contact with his chair.

"In The Beginning" life was pure and innocent, and if anything like Margalit Oved's choreography, probably extremely humorous. It was so refreshing to see human life celebrated instead of criticized. The performance by Keith Marshall as Adam and Andrea Harriston as Eve was sensitive and humorous as well as technically strong.

"Requiem for Jimmy Dean: Search for a Hero" was surprising, to say the least. Picture thirteen girls all dressed identically in Black (against a black background) all pefforming the same movements around an idol. Obviously the dancers represented the faceless masses paying homage to a false idol (this idol happened to be Jimmy Dean).

The movements of the thirteen women were erotic, yet tightly controlled and were motivated by force and enjoyment of the movements. Yet Keith Marshall's movements were slow, almost pre-meditated, rationally controlled, and he sat beneath the idol, immune to its power, throughout most of the dance. One wonders what Jack Cole was trying to say. It would have been more effectively left in its Broadway musical style minus the message.

As a whole, the UCLA Dance Company program was exciting and dramatic, and extremely varied; with effort and commitment displayed by all those involved.

MURRAY LOUIS
DANCE COMPANY

Descartes once said that "motion is the expression of the spirit." Whether he spoke of human movement or celestial movement is unimportant; he did understand the ability to communicate through motion. Last Saturday night UCLA was privileged to watch Descartes theory in practice when the Jose Limon Dance Company performed four pieces in Royce Hall. Unfortunately, the program was dedicated to the memory of Jose Limon who died Dec. 2, 1972; but it was apparent throughout this program that his spirit will endure.

The living example of Limon's spirit is embodied within each of his dancers. Not only is their technical ability articulate and dramatic, but it is rare to discover so many powerfully controlled and individual men in one company. "The Unsung" was a showcase for each man's talent and style. Not only is it technically perfect, but it is an effectively dramatic piece of choreography, with no music except the rhythm of the dancer's feet striking the stage, and the rhythm of the human body in motion.

In direct contrast to "The Unsung" is the piece entitled "Orpheo." It is Limon's last peice of choreography before his death, and it is a tribute to his artistic talents. Extremely romantic in style (music by Beethoven) it manages to remain honest without becoming "corny."

If "The Unsung" was a showcase for the men, "Dances For Isadora" was equally succesful for the women in the company. Almost as romantic in style as "Orpheo" (music this time by Chopin), "Isadora" contained more psychological motivation. It is choreographed as a group dance, yet its form is a sequential unfolding of five personalities of Isadora Duncan (if you so choose it) or else a short history of the psychological growth of modern dance (also your choice).

Whatever one's interpretation is, the dance as a whole is entertaining. Each role appears to be perfectly fitted to the dancer; and each dancer's emotional interpretation gives life to the role.

The weakest piece in the program was "The Emperor Jones." Limon's "Emperor Jones" does not follow precisely the original O'Neill play, rather it attempts to explore another dimension of the main theme. But if the men were superb in "The Unsung" they were disappointing as an ensemble in "Emperor Jones." Their timing was slightly off in the beginning and unfortunately never became harmonized. The music was (as in other pieces) romantic, but this time obviously dated, bordering on melodramatic. The set and lighting conceptions saved the piece because of its sparse and abstract quality.

Limon's decision to create either all male or all female dances (with the exception of Orpheo) may appear strange or unsatisfying, however his choice is obviously a conscious one and must be considered as such. Perhaps Limon wanted to celebrate the essential differences between man and woman; or perhaps he has a definite conception of man and his particular movements which differs from his conception of woman and her special movement patterns. Thus, he chose to dramatize men and women separately dealing with the universal problems and pleasures of living. Whatever his reasons, his spirit will continue to speak for dance.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

James Cunningham AND the Acme Dance Co.

Powell Library, that student haven, where the days reflect the noisy bustle of a busy beehive and at nights the graveyard silence is disturbed only by the gentle gnawing of well bred bookworms, now heard a different kind of sound.

The Rotunda reverberated to the beat of a classical guitar, capably played by the knowing fingers of Steven Elster, a student of the music department here.

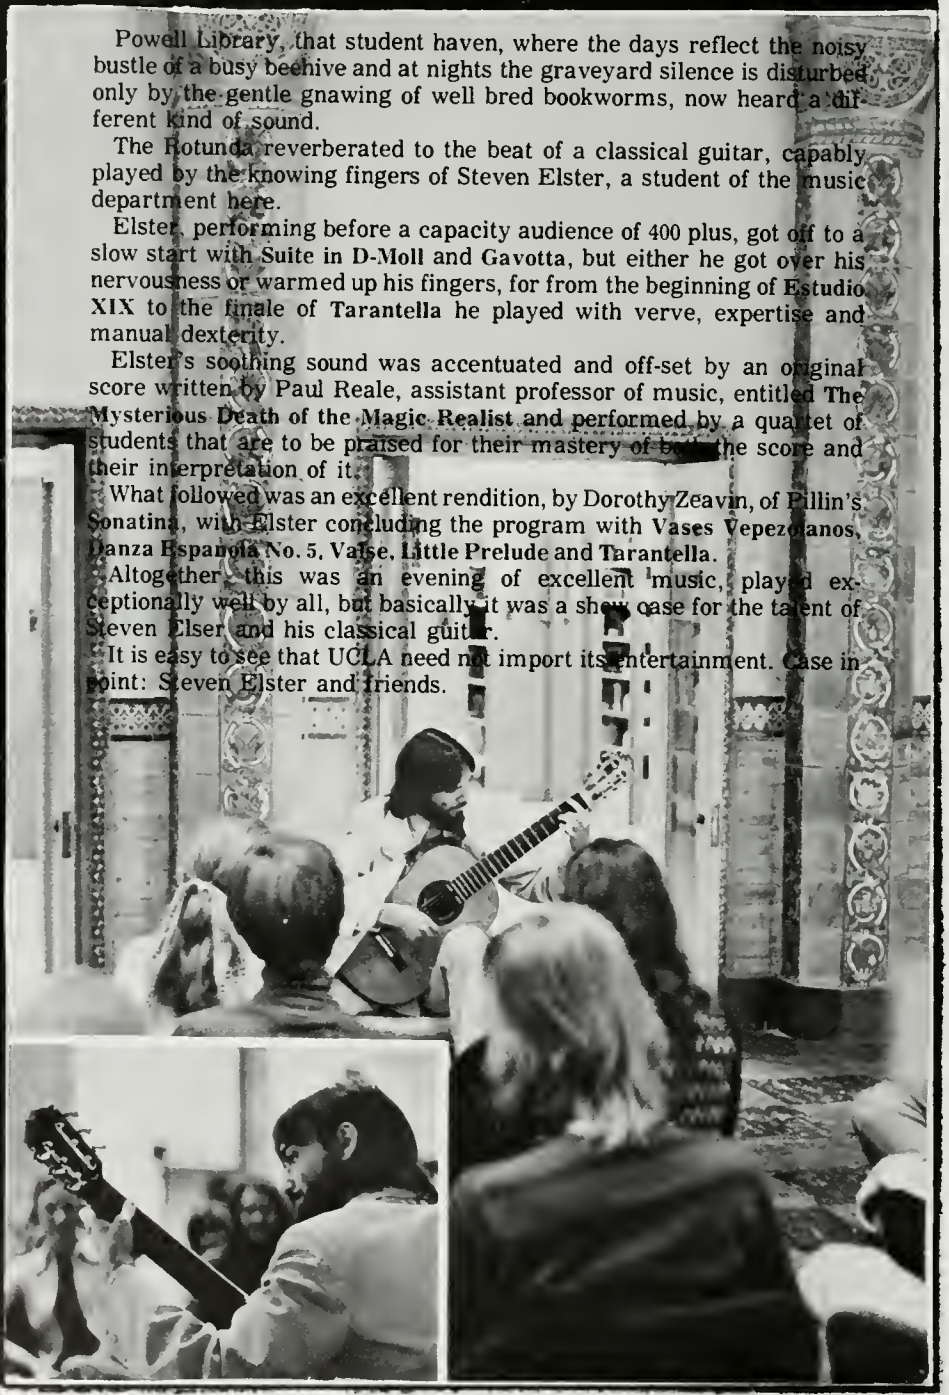
Elster, performing before a capacity audience of 400 plus, got off to a slow start with Suite in D-Moll and Gavotta, but either he got over his nervousness or warmed up his fingers, for from the beginning of Estudio XIX to the finale of Tarantella he played with verve, expertise and manual dexterity.

Elster's soothing sound was accentuated and off-set by an original score written by Paul Reale, assistant professor of music, entitled The Mysterious Death of the Magic Realist and performed by a quartet of students that are to be praised for their mastery of both the score and their interpretation of it.

What followed was an excellent rendition, by Dorothy Zeavin, of Pillin's Sonatina, with Elster concluding the program with Vases Vepezolanos, Danza Espanola No. 5, Valse, Little Prelude and Tarantella.

Altogether, this was an evening of excellent music, played exceptionally well by all, but basically it was a show case for the talent of Steven Elser and his classical guitar.

It is easy to see that UCLA need not import its entertainment. Case in point: Steven Elster and friends.



The number of great productions that appeared on the UCLA campus during the past year was so great that Southern Campus couldn't possibly display them all. Instead we have decided, in the next 3 pages, to give just a verbal hint of the talent that the students and the public had the pleasure of seeing during 1972-1973.

reflections...

From the first game of the season when we defeated last year's national champs, the University of Nebraska, to the SC game when we lost to this year's national champs, it was one exciting season.

A lot of people have called it the year of the Wishbone. I prefer to call it the year of commitment. Our coaches and players were committed to making UCLA the most improved football team in major college ranks, from a 2-7-1 losing season in '71 to a 8-3-0 winning campaign this year. How sweet it is. The only thing that would have made the year better, of course, would have been a win over the greatest Trojan team of them all. Unfortunately we can't always have everything that we want, but there will be another year for UCLA.

There were many stars on this year's football team, but the players that we will miss most are obviously those seniors who gave us so many exciting moments. We will miss Randy Tyler and Gary Campbell in their fine runs from the fullback position. The fine offensive line play of Lassner, Walton, Leal, and Gaschler will be sorely missed as without their fine blocking up front UCLA would not rank as the greatest running team in Pacific-8 history. And who can forget Brad Lyman, Terry Vernoy, and Reggie Echols contributing so much to our success. One of the true heroes was Rob Scribner, who gave up a starting defensive secondary job to help where he was needed most at quarterback. Rob gained 498 yards rushing and averaged 7.7 yards per carry. What a great year for our offensive seniors.

Fortunately we only lose one defensive senior, but he was a great one, and that is Allan Ellis. He played regularly for three years and did a great job all three years, but saved his best for last. Bruce Barnes, the leading Conference punter for three years and Paul Moyneur, who played many positions well, are just some of our seniors, but we will miss each and every one of them.

We are looking forward to a great year in 1973 with McAlister, Johnson and Harmon returning in the backfield that broke every UCLA offensive record plus some outstanding offensive linemen, but most important we return 10 of 11 defensive starters so it should be another exciting year for Bruin fans.

I want to thank all the members of the 1972 Bruin team as well as all the many fans of Bruin football and their support throughout this year.

Sincerely,

Pepper

Rally Committee

Rally Committee no longer plans rallies and isn't really a committee.

Rally Committee is a feeling.

Rally Committee is when the autumn sun sets over the graceful sweep of the Coliseum and the ground shudders before the unleashed vocal energy of students and air horns and your friends are there and suddenly all your work is worth it.

Rally Committee is an art form; drawing and writing and changing and worrying until finally amplified voices boom out over a canvas as big as your house and our school once again has the best card stunts and the only light stunts anywhere.

Rally Committee is the satisfaction of making UCLA a better place; spirit, service, lines at Pauley, and improved relations with alumni and taxpayers.

But mostly Rally Committee is people; an astonishingly diverse bunch creating and laughing together and becoming involved in a way few of today's anomie-afflicted students can understand.

Rally Committee is.

SPORTSMAN OF THE YEAR

COLLEGE BASKETBALL'S JOHN WOODEN

1972-1973 The 25th Wooden Year

The Bruins celebrated Coach John Wooden's silver anniversary at UCLA with an unprecedented ninth NCAA Championship in the past ten years and extended the Bruin win streak to a record 75 games in a row, in addition to numerous other records that were established at the same time

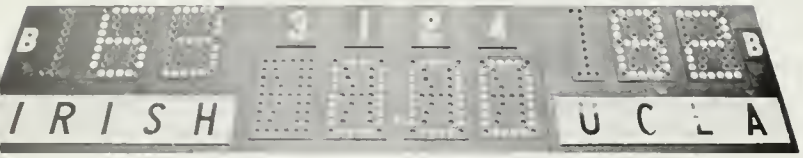
Number 61 . . . UCLA obliterates USF's record 60-game win streak



Coach John Wooden accepts game ball from Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps upon defeating the Irish 82-63 to establish a new record for the most consecutive games won by a college basketball team. Thus the Bruins erased the record of 60 straight set by USF's Bill Russell-K.C. Jones team in the mid 50's. Playing amongst a hostile South Bend crowd, Wilkes hit for 20 points, Walton and Farmer had 16 apiece with Walton grabbing 15 rebounds. Hollyfield and Farmer were the only two Bruins on the last UCLA team to lose a game — to Notre Dame, when All-American Austin Carr accumulated 46 points giving the Irish an 89-82 victory. Along with Wooden, both were more than overjoyed with the record breaking victory over the Irish.

reflections... 1972-1973 UCLA Basketball In Retrospect

A mild heart problem which caused me to miss my first game in thirty-eight years of coaching, the problems involved with the maintainment of a long consecutive game winning streak which has now reached an unbelievable total of seventy-five, the normal pressures that are to be expected from being "at the top" for such an unprecedented period of years, and the additional burden brought on by the publication of several books pertaining to UCLA basketball and my personal life all contributed to making the 1972-1973 season one of the most "trying" in my experience.

However, the end result was extremely gratifying and made this one of the most cherished of all of our championships.

How can I ever forget — the magnificent performance of Bill Walton in the championship game against Memphis State, the inspirational and effective play of Tommy Curtis on many occasions and especially in the tournament games against USF and Indiana, the always smooth and often brilliant play of Keith Wilkes, the fine all around and consistent performances of Larry Farmer, the many brilliant steals and outstanding plays of Larry Hollyfield, the beautiful lob passes of Greg Lee to Walton and Farmer, the steady improvement and productive play of David Meyers, the good humor and fine touch of Sven Nater, and, although their game time was limited, the often overlooked but extremely important daily practice contributions of Vince Carson, Casey Corliss, Ralph Drollinger, Gary Franklin, Pete Trgovich, and Bobby Webb, the efficient managerial staff headed by Les Friedman, and the loyalty and intelligent cooperation of my assistants, Gary Cunningham and Frank Arnold.

Yes, this 1972-1973 UCLA basketball team not only compiled a perfect season record culminating in the NCAA championship, they also provided many exciting and memorable moments that will be reflected upon for years to come by UCLA alumni and friends, our opponents, and all who are truly interested in the wonderful sport of basketball.

CROSS COUNTRY

reflections...

Cross Country is a season for the true enjoyment of the pleasures of running as well as a time of preparation for the important spring to come.

Hal Harkness

Hal Harkness, Coach

The UCLA cross country team had to be rated underdogs in their first two competitions against the East Los Angeles Track Club and the University of Arizona. Even though they lost both competitions the team led by Ron Johnson, Ruben Chappins, Jim Salcido and Ruben Mejia had made a strong showing and spirits were high in anticipation of a successful season.

Just before their third meet against Cal Poly Pomona, Ron Johnson and Ruben Chappins fell ill. Freshman Jim Salcido moved up to the number one spot and Gary Nitti, Gordon Innes, Tony Veney and Greg Higgins all helped take up the burden and led the Bruins to a 21-36 win over Cal Poly. The following week, the team still without Johnson and Chappins, finished 6th in the USTFF Cross Country Championships.

The Bruins went on to place 3rd in the Southern Division Pac 8 meet and 5th in the Pac 8. Johnson and Chappins never really came back to their full strength, but Jim Salcido and Gordon Innes proved that they have potential for the future, coming on very strong at the end of the season.

reflections...

UCLA Water Polo Team was blessed with superiar talent along with overall team depth. The 1972 seasan found six experienced seniors carrying the weight of competition for UCLA. Five of those six seniors were starters. Included within this high caliber group were Eric Lindrath, the only collegiate athlete to compete in water polo at Munich, and goalie Kevin Craig bath of whom were All-Americans.

The success of Bruin Water Pala teams in becamming 1972 NCAA Champions was not just based entirely on having a talented squad. Many of the apponents UCLA faced during the season, especially those in the Pac-8, had an equal number of adroit players. What gave our team the winning edge was the players willingness to exert extra effart in the pre-seasan conditianing program which generally consisted of two-a-day workouts, at the beach and on campus.

The psychalagical advantage alsa fell to our Bruins by a series of unique events. Early in the seasan aur abvious strength gave us a surplus of over-canfidence which culminated in our defeat at the hands of our crosstown rival USC. The effect of this defeat was not what I or any of our supporters expected. Rather than weakening aur team, this failure eliminated our over-confidence and replaced it with an attitude of unity within the team and contralled agressian against our opponents.

In essence our psychological attitude, physical condition and gifted ability combined to give us the Championship.

reflections...

The role of runner-up to St. Louis in the 1972 N.C.A.A. Soccer Championship shouldn't cloud the season that preceded that dramatic night in Miami, but it will inevitably do so.

Perhaps we tried so hard and wanted that national title so badly, we tend to forget the things that made 1972 so momentuous for UCLA Soccer. If so, I want you to remember your accomplishments as well as your loss.

For All Americans Shoa Agonafer and Fesseha Wolde-Emanuel it ended four seasons of sheer brilliance as individuals, tacticians and leaders. Thank you too Shoa for all your help in coaching the team.

There were some great moments in 1972. Defeating the University of Mexico is always a triumph. Then who can forget that glorious night in San Jose when you fought back for a win that blotted out the midseason mishaps? Remember too the drama when we played Stanford? We found ourselves 4-0 down, only to come back and score 7 goals and achieve an apparently impossible victory. Yet our finest game was surely the N.C.A.A. Western Final, the third battle with San Jose which sent us to Miami — it certainly was our most complete team performance.

Our program is only six years old yet we've been the N.C.A.A. runner-up twice and in the play-offs five times. To those of you who are leaving — Steve Burnside, Solomon Terfa, Carlos Trevino, John Henderson, Ken Garrick — you can be proud of what you've achieved. To those who are staying — did you know UCLA was in 9 N.C.A.A. play-offs before they won their first championship? — — so — — until next year!

Sincerely,

Dennis Storer

Wrestling

reflections...

The Bruin wrestling squad was loaded with young inexperienced wrestlers. Having only three seniors, one of whom was a regular starter, Jimmy Rodriguez, was team captain along with another senior Ed King.

With a sophomore dominated team with individuals such as, Mark Black, Craig Deane, Brady Hall and Gilbert Mendez, the Bruins had a slow start. Our inexperience was very evident at the annual Arizona Tournament which draws the nations top wrestling powers west of the Mississippi.

With the great help of newly acquired assistant coach Dave Auble, we finally got the team on a win streak just prior to Christmas, downing four opponents in a row.

We had some improvement and our young team, although being beaten in total points quite badly; made some very fine individual showings.

The greatest satisfaction came when the underdog Bruins handed Cal Berkeley a solid whopping, 36-6, in Pauley Pavilian just before the Pac 8 Championships.

At the Pac 8 Tournament in Carvalis, Oregon the Bruins qualified 6 out of 10 wrestlers for the NCAA Championships. "Come thru" performances were shown by Steve Weiss, Terry Gorman and John White.

Gymnastics

reflections...

The 1973 UCLA Gymnastic Team is the team that I am most proud of, in the nine seasons I have been coaching at UCLA. The team this year was outstanding. It was characterized by its toughness and determination to succeed. We came back from a dual meet deficit of 1-4 to finish the season at 6-6.

Among the team victories this year that are most memorable, were wins over NCAA college division champions Cal State Fullerton (151.30-150.10) and USC (155.35-150.20).

The Pacific-8 Gymnastic Championships, which UCLA hosted, was our final team competition and one that best exemplified the drive and winning spirit of the team. In this competition, every UCLA gymnast gave a maximum effort for the success of the team. The optional routine session of the PAC-8 Championships was the the top meet of the year for the team. We had a seasonal high score in 9 positions on our way to a 154.05 total. In the individual finals, we qualified 6 men with Steve Gerlach winning the PAC-8 in floor exercise and Mark Sherwood placing 2nd. on the rings. The combined compulsory and optional team results of the PAC-8: 1. California, 315.15; 2. Washington, 305.25; 3. Stanford, 297.65; 4. UCLA 292.25; 5. Washington St., 287.60; 6. USC, 287.20; 7. Oregon 282.70.

The UCLA PAC-8 team members: floor exercise — Gary Castner, Steve Gerlach, Leo Germain, George Govednik; pommel horse — Germain, Govednik, Shawn Miyaki, Leroy Saenz; rings — Castner, Mike Moser, Mark Sherwood; vaulting — Davie Freedland, Gerlach, Govednik, parallel bars — Dave Cook, Freedland, Germain; high bars — Ken Eastman, Govednik, Shawn McClenahan; assistant coach — Paul Roggenkamp; team manager — Fred Osborne.

This is a group of men it was my pleasure to work with, a group that represented UCLA well.

reflections...

The 1973 Crew season was to be a building year. Only three senior heavyweights were returning and a very good group of sophomores would be the bulk of the squad. Due to the pressures of the hardest racing schedule in UCLA's history, an attempt was made to put a fast boat together earlier than usual. Although the squad responded well, it was a case of trying to catch up all season long.

The highlight of the season was the fourth consecutive undefeated season for the Lightweight Varsity. The Light weight Varsity and Four with coxswain repeated as Western Sprint and Pacific Eight Champions.

Rugby

reflections...

An open letter to the 1973 Rugby team:

Congratulations on a fine season. Considering the number of novices on the varsity team, you exceeded all expecations, (except for one 6-7 loss to Berkeley — we let that one slip through our fingers!)

A special well done to those newcomers who had to accept the responsibilities of varsity rugby in their first season — Greg Pearman, Paul Mayneur, Steve Hookano, John Sciarra, Clay Gallacher, and also the many newcomers playing for the Greyhounds (the seconds).

The big games were again our traditional rivals Berkeley, Stanford, and U.S.C. and apart from Berkeley we had no problems. Our end of the season tour to Canada made up for the minor desappointments before. Winning the World Cup 4-3 against the University of British Columbia had to be the high point of your efforts this year, although it was achieved by defensive guts rather than the usual formula of piling up the points.

For the Captain, Rob Scribner, M.V.P. Skip Neibauer, Best Back John Williams, Best Forward Wade Killefer, it was an especially fine season.

On to '74!

In Memory of

. . . Jackie Robinson

Shortly before his death on October 24, 1972, Jackie Robinson celebrated, at the 1972 World Series games in Cincinnati, the 25th anniversary of his start in major league baseball. On acceptance of a plaque commemorating the event he said, "I am extremely proud and pleased, but I will be more pleased the day I can look over at third base and see a black man as manager." A man never without a cause, Jackie Robinson was the first Black athlete to break into major league baseball with the then-Brooklyn Dodgers in 1947.

At UCLA Jackie starred in football, basketball, track, and baseball. He is the only Bruin athlete in history to earn letters in four varsity sports. A Football All-American in 1939, he also set a Pacific Coast Conference record in the long jump and led in basketball scoring in 1941. Jackie left UCLA in 1941 and went on to subsequent fame in baseball.

The Reverend Jesse Jackson, a close friend of Jackie Robinson, eulogized, "This man turned a stumbling block into a stepping stone."

Jackie with Wife Rachel

. . . Kenny Washington

Kenny Washington never received the national recognition that his former Bruin teammate Jackie Robinson did after leaving Westwood. Yet, there are many Bruin fans who still remember Washington, the fleet and record-setting tailback, as UCLA's greatest football player of all time. He became UCLA's first all-around star with the 1937 football season and then teamed with Robinson in 1938 and 1939 to nearly take UCLA to the Rose Bowl. The two parted ways after Kenny's graduation in 1940, but UCLA shall never forget his exploits. Ironically, Kenny, who had graduated one year earlier than Jackie, succumbed one year earlier than his former teammate, June 24, 1971.

Baseball

reflections...

My pre-season predictions came pretty close to what really happened to the 1973 Bruin Baseball team. The Bruins would battle the Trojans and the Stanford Cardinals for the number one spot. The pitching area was our weakest spot, and our strength was our defense with Luis Gamez and Dave Guerrero providing one of the top double play combinations in the Pacific Eight.

Centerfielder Bob Adams led the Pacific 8 in batting and was a big plus on offense. Greg Zail, John Rouse and sophomore Frank Panich carried the pitching load, with the bull pen in great shape with senior Bruce Baronick putting out the fire in the late innings.

Six out of the seven pitchers recruited for the '73 campaign, with signed letters of intent, said good-bye to campus life by signing professional contracts. Money seems to be more important than the book league.

BRUIN

reflections...

The 1973 UCLA track and field team hos come through so for on all my predictions that were stated last January before the season ever started. I stated at that time that we would have the greatest field event team in collegiate history, and that our runners would also surprise. Also stoted was this could be the greatest duol meet team of oll-time. As this goes to press we have become the greatest dual meet team of all-time, winning the NCAA "Dual meet" title for the third time in the lost four years.

The team has also collected two thirds of its hoped for "grand slam" of dual meets, conference, ond NCAA championships.

To exploin this team's greatness would be very hard. There has been vast improvement by man, surprises, ond also what was expected. The biggest surprise was the great improvement of sophomore Tony Veney. Tony ran 1:52.0 last year in the 880 and has already run 1:48.5 for third in the Pac-8 chamipnships. The improvement of all the distance runners was o very pleasont surprise. The credit must be divided between the excellent attitude on the athlete's part, and the great coaching by our new distance coach, Hal Harkness.

The field event men have been sensational all year. The high jumpers with life time bests, both discus throwers with life time bests. Roger Freberg with o new discus school record. All three shot putters with life time bests, and especially the very outstanding job Dove Schiller has done. Dave, up to this dote, has improved from 55' 3 3/4" to 62' 2 1/4" — that is quite an improvement for the smallest "big time" shot putter in the nation! The pole vaulters have been very consistent when needed. The long jumpers and triple jumpers hove been outstanding all year, with all four roted at the top of the U.S. National list. Rory Kotinek has done o great job in our one thin event, the javelin.

The hurdlers, sprinters, and 440 ment hove been outstanding all year. Benny Brown is now regarded as the greatest quarter miler in the world, and our four hurdlers are rated near the top on the national list.

To sum this up, I can say this has been o very confident team, rising to the occosion whenever needed, and just winning when the opponent was easy! In my mind this is the greatest team ever assembled, ond mony people agree, but the hour of decision will be the NCAA Championships at Louisiana State University, June 7, 8, ond 9 — we wont that "Grond Slam!"

Head Track & Field Coach Jim Bush

RIGHT-Gordon Peppars and Dotson Wilson, both timed at 9.7, ran first and third in a tri-meet with Tennesse and Kansas. BELOW-Soph. transfer Tom Guerrero, last year's State JC IH Champ (52.4), follows in the footsteps Bruin 440 IH performers Wayne Collett and Roger Johnson.

UCLA TRACK AND FIELD STADIUM NAMED FOR "DUCKY" DRAKE

The UCLA track and field stadium has been named the Drake Track and Field Stadium in honor of longtime coach and trainer Elvin C. "Ducky" Drake. Drake was announced last September 1972, by Chancellor Charles E. Young following action by the Board of Regents.

Drake, [illegible] 1974, had been a coach and trainer at UCLA for 43 years and had served as head track coach for 36 years. [illegible] age, Ducky Drake still serves as trainer for the Bruin football and basketball teams on a [illegible] basis.

Following his graduation from UCLA in 1927, [illegible] assistant varsity track coach (1929-46), cross-country coach (1935-42), freshman track coach (1935-45), head varsity track coach (1947-64) and head athletic trainer (1942-72).

[illegible] in the 1960 Olympics at Rome when two of his decathlon stars, Rafer Johnson and C.K. Yang, finished 1-2 in one of the most dramatic duels in Olympic history. Another Olympic medalist was Cy Young, winner of the javelin throw in the 1952 games at Helsinki.

One of Drake's track teams won the NCAA championship in 1956, and he was named track and field "Coach of the Year."

Drake, however, may be best known for his work as athletic trainer for the past 30 years, a position in which he guided athletes in Bruin football, basketball and all other intercollegiate sports. He was only recognized as [illegible] in the Home Hall [illegible] [illegible] of Fame in 1968.

[illegible] 12,000 spectators and was first used in February 1969. It has an all-weather nine-lane Tartan [illegible] accommodate athletic events.

Swimming & Diving

The experience of coaching superior college athletes is often a difficult position for any individual to hold. Coaches are required to be diplomats, psychologists and sociologists in reference to their participants which can make coaching a giant pressure cooker.

This was not the case for the 1973 Bruin swimmers who represented a group of nineteen very mature and stable young people. The attitude of devotion on the part of this year's team made this season a fun and rewarding experience for myself as a coach. Our swimmers were quite young seeing the team consisted of only one senior, five juniors, four sophomores, and nine freshmen. Steve Doyle was the team's captain being our only senior and definite All-American choice. His leadership helped to develop and motivate many of our younger members by presenting a good image to follow.

UCLA also became the first major men's intercollegiate sports team to have a female member. Susie Kincade, one of our freshman divers, proved herself to be a major contributor to our success in dual meets. Susie's grace and superior style made her a consistent scorer for the Bruins this year.

Much of our success was based on the fact that our people who had no reputations gained them by superior performances, plus our big names improved over their performances from previous years. All of this was created by hard work.

At this time I'm confident that the Bruin teams of the next few years will develop the depth to compete and defeat the swim powerhouses like USC and Indiana at the NCAA's. Like all the teams at UCLA we are shooting for the moon in the form of NCAA Championship. It appears to me that we are very close to our goal and this year's recruiting program should help boost our team into reacing our mark in '74.

UCLA TENNIS 1973

This year's edition of the tennis team is vastly improved over the 1972 team. It is a team that has excellent depth and strong singles and doubles play. UCLA is a strong contender for national and conference titles.

Following is a sketch of each player:

1. Jeff Austin, senior from Rolling Hills. 1972 All-American. Number 23 ranked in U.S. Has excellent all around game.
2. Bob Kreiss, senior from Bel Air. Two time All-American. Number 41 ranked in U.S. Has great backhand and best doubles player on team.
3. Steve Krulevitz, senior from Baltimore. Transfer from Utah. Ranks number 38 in U.S. Fastest player with fine ground strokes.
4. Rayno Seegers, sophomore from South Africa, where he ranked number 5. Strongest player on team and has a lot of talent.
5. Brian Teacher, frosh from San Diego. National Junior doubles champion. Best potential on team.
6. Steve Mott, frosh from La Jolla. National junior doubles champion. Excellent doubles player.

Volleyball

reflections...

At the time of publication, the Bruins are one game out of first place in the tough Southern California Volleyball Association. They are going for their fourth straight NCAA Championship.

Three starting seniors who joined the team as junior college transfers after their freshman year 1973 captains Ron Coon, Ken Freeman and Jeff Jacobs. Jeff started as a sophomore and junior. Ken and Ron saw a lot of action as first and second men off the bench during the past two years. Coon is the most improved spiker on the squad and setter Ken Freeman directs the quick Bruin attack quite capably. Senior Tom Chomoles is a first year man with the potential to break into the starting line-up before the end of the season. Tom has demonstrated great ability during the summer beach volleyball circuit and is adaptin well to the six man game. Other starters are juniors Mike Normand, Bob Leonard, Jim Menges, and sophomore John Bekins.

Women at UCLA are competing successfully in numerous intercollegiate sports—Volleyball, Tennis, Basketball, Swimming, Gymnastics and Track. Ever since the NCAA ruling allowed coeds to compete in certain varsity sports, more and more have been doing so. In fact, Crew Coach Johnsen has enough girls out for the sport he can run two frosh female shells. Also, he notes coed coxswain have a definite weight advantage since they have to be light.

At right is freshman diver Susie Kincade, the first coed to compete on a varsity squad.

PNITES

Why aren't fraternities dead here? The UCLA DAILY BRUIN has been predicting their doom for sometime and it seems that one fraternity house after another has gone to the auction block according to the newspaper. So why is it, that names such as Sigma Nu, Sigma Chi, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon still exist at UCLA?

Fraternity life has changed, and changed drastically. Four years ago, it appeared that the Fraternity System was dying. However, this year, fraternities stand stronger than they have in any year in the past decade, and this is because of the changing lifestyle evolving within the system. Gone are the days of regular Friday Afternoon Beer Busts, Wednesday Night Exchanges, and Sorority Raids. That is not to say that a varied social calendar does not still exist, but it is not longer the focal point of the system.

The fact that the Fraternity System has a grade point average above the UCLA All Men's Average, that many of its members are leaders within the student government, or that it devotes thousands of man hours to such charitable activities as Mardi Gras or Multiple Sclerosis is not what is fundamentally important.

What is important is that each fraternity house, and its members, are able to come together within a lifestyle that is mutually beneficial. Woodrow Wilson stated that, "Coming together is a beginning; working together is progress; living together is success.", this is the goal that the Fraternity System is constantly trying to improve upon. As long as the bond of mutual respect and cooperation exists within the UCLA Fraternity System, it will remain a strong and viable part of the campus community.

SORORITIES

Continually re-evaluating ourselves and thinking in terms of survival, we have found ourselves questioning Greek tradition. The necessity for integrating original ideals of sorority living with contemporary needs of college women has emerged as the dynamic force behind the Greek system. Communal living develops individuality, which enhances one's capacity to contribute to the group, and as a group to the community. We have begun to realize the potential in a sorority to increase each woman's awareness of expanding avenues of commitment. The experience of living among and sharing oneself with diverse personalities forces each of us to be flexible and open. It is this flexibility that has allowed the sororities to adapt to changing demands and insures their future strength.

In our time the family unit is considered to be a social group with an uncertain future. But here at Alpha Xi Delta we have a family with a positive outlook, a cohesive unit with each member an essential contributor to the group. Love, help, understanding, and social activities are some of the ingredients which we feel contribute to the viability of our family. In essence, our sorority is a tightly-knit group whose congenial atmosphere encourages sharing joys or problems, and a unit which extends itself to benefit others.

Congrats.
As a graduating senior you have — been around the sun about 22 times — spent 17 years in the educational process, or 4,590 days in class — counting time off for weekends, holidays, summer, and bad moods, or 34,560 hours in class taking off for lunch, recess and sleeping late, or close to 50,000 hours studying counting homework,field trips and cramming, which is roughly 2,080 times longer than it took God to create a new world from scratch.

What's wrong with you?

The yearbook does strange things to many people.

To many of the students it is just another means of extracting the money from their wallets and putting it into the university pie. Their pictures are not in the book for the most part and therefore they can see no useful purpose for its existence.

For the few students who shell out the required money for its purchase, the yearbook is to look at once and then cover up that unsightly stain on the coffee table. Only five or so years later do the students pick up the book and earnestly look for themselves and their friends and recall all those memories that they could never seem to remember on their own.

For the various athletic coaches on the campus the book serves as a sort of family album recalling the victorious as well as the lean years. It starts the coach thinking what he would do differently if he only had a second chance. If the coach was lucky he had the pleasure of coaching an athlete who has gone on to the pro ranks. There is indeed that singular moment of pride.

For the seniors pictured in the book, it is a certain way of proving that they did indeed graduate. In the day of fake signatures, fake term-papers, fake diplomas, the yearbook is the only item that people are too smart to fake. It also makes for good bed-time yarns that will put any child into instant slumberland.

For the many administrators it is a quick way of telling just how long they have been at the university. Almost every administrator has a yearbook for each of his years here and the more he has the older he is.

To the various committee members who decide whether or not there is to be a yearbook, the fact that each receives a complimentary copy does not sway their minds. The committee can only see through dollar-sign eyes and it is obvious to them that the yearbook is not holding its own, so in the eyes of the committee the yearbook should be laid to rest. I suppose that's the way it should be. At least Darwin thought so.

For the people in the publications office, the staff was often one that would steal the secretaries as well as the envelopes and any other such movable items. Mr. Harry Morris, Manager of all the publications, has won our "Who has the most yearbooks?" contest. He has a copy of every yearbook from 1938 on. At the end of this year he will be retiring from the battle.

To the people in the Campus Studio, the staff of the yearbook wants but will not give. We want their photo passes but we won't give them all our other photographic business. So it goes.

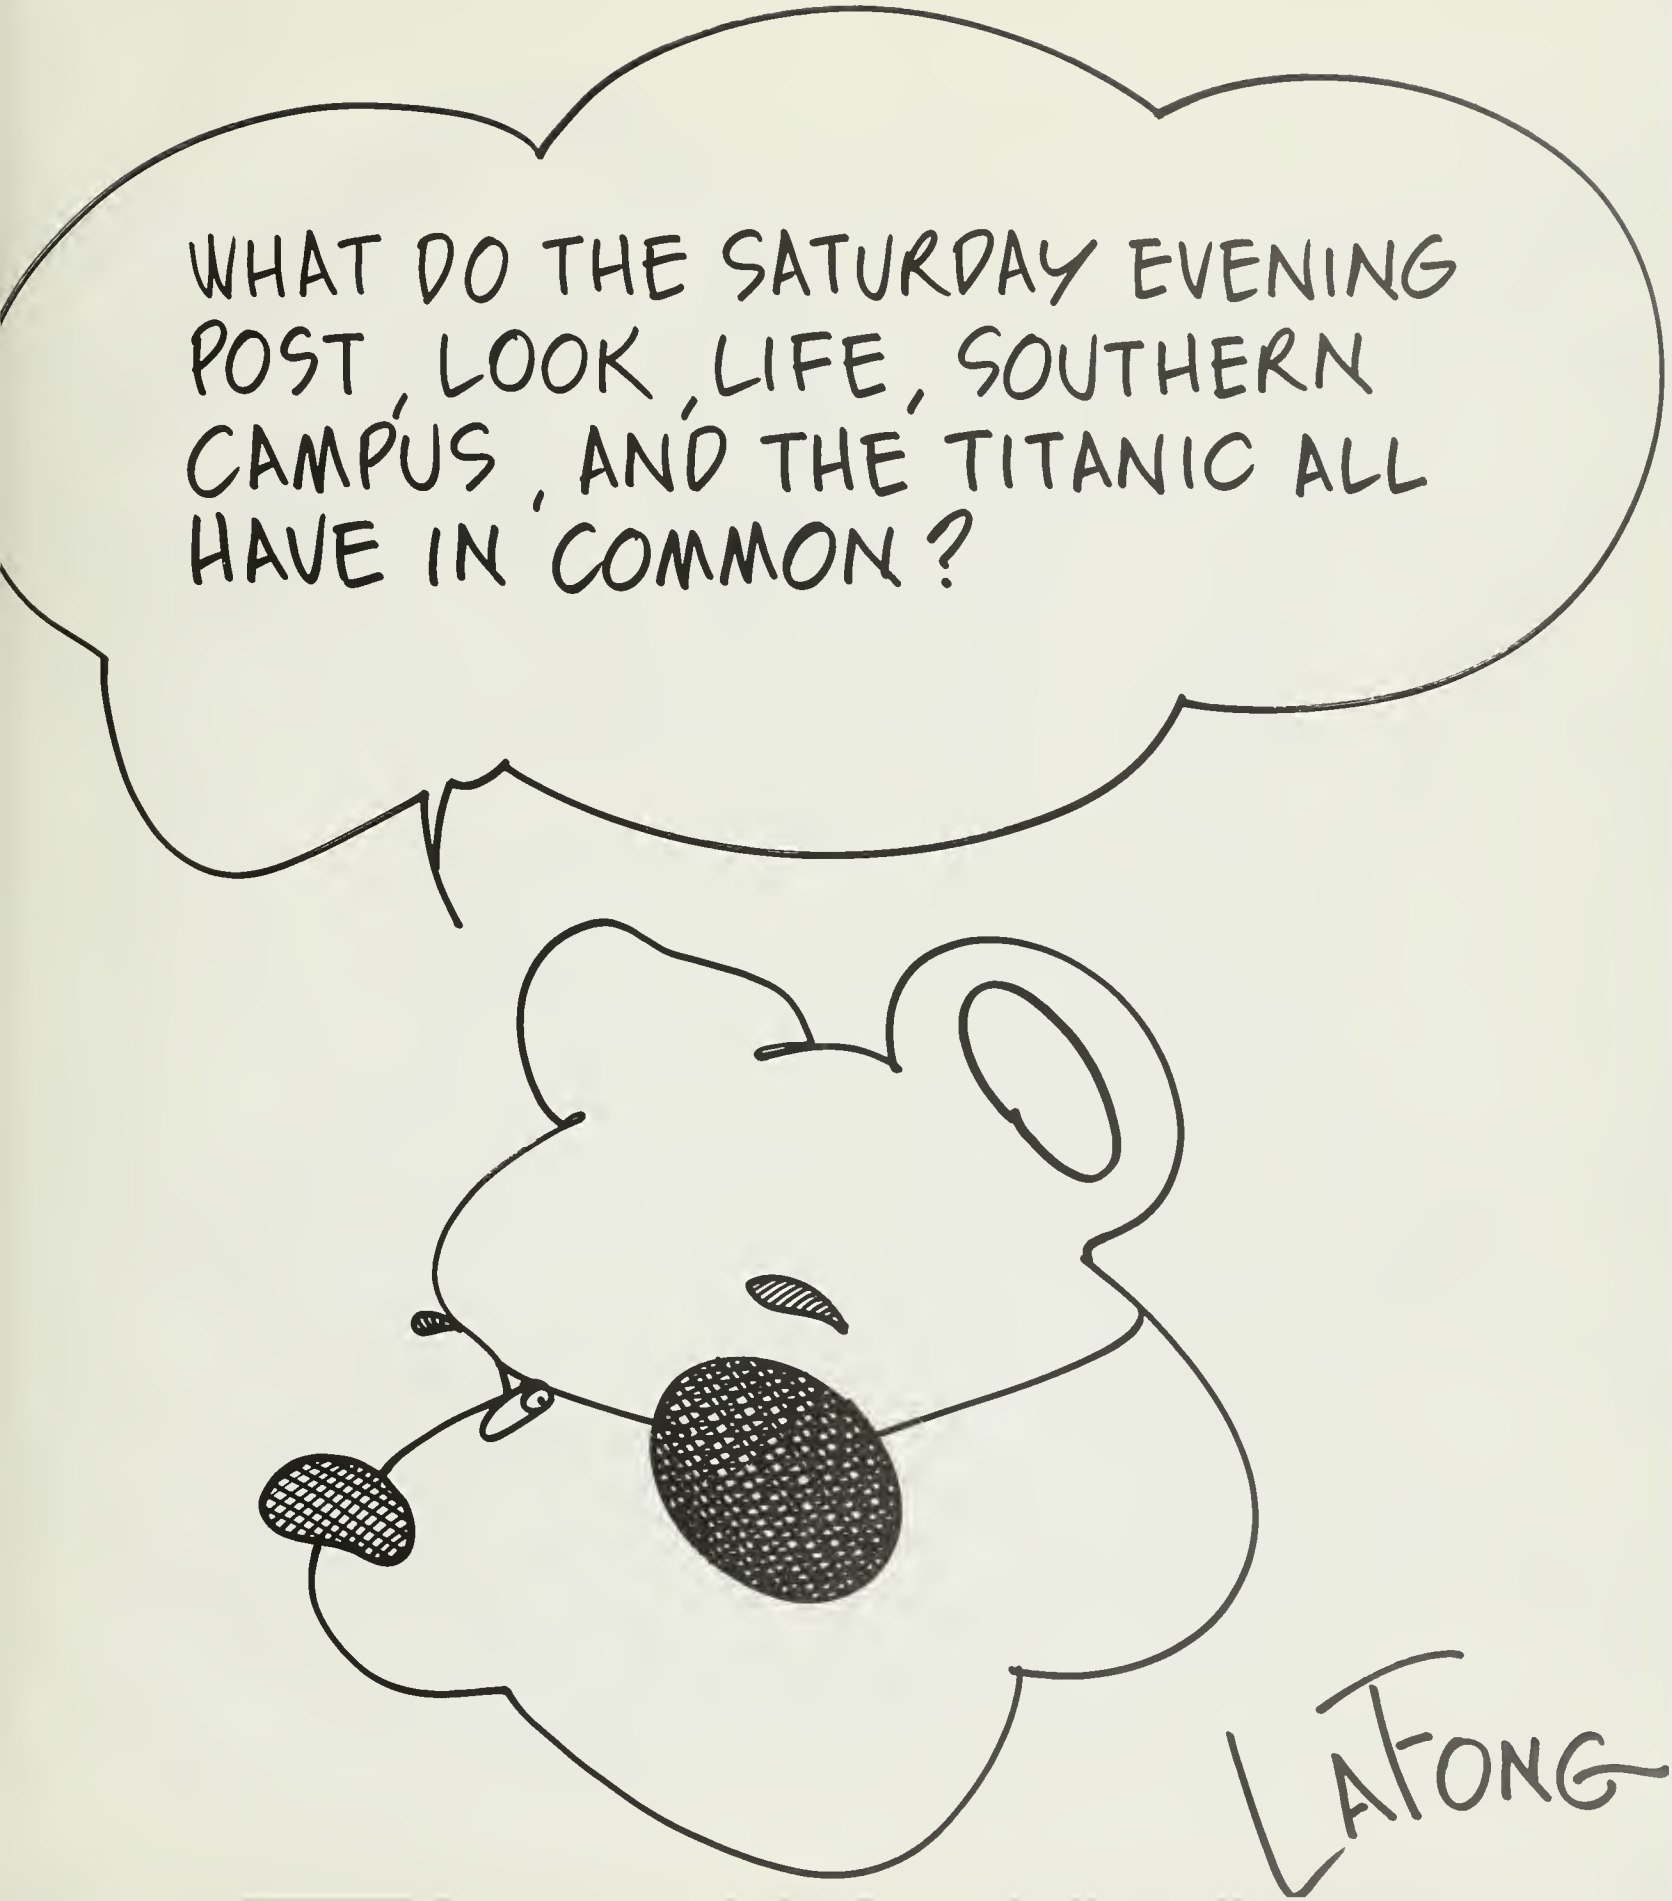
The campus organizations choose to ignore us while the fraternities prefer to ignore us and the sororities forget to remember us. It's that simple. Many people believe that with the demise of the Greek system, there goes the bulkof concentrated school spirit, and since it takes a lot of spirit to buy a yearbook

The Sports Editor is also the Photo Editor and the yearbook is just one massive jungle of proof sheets, negatives, eight by tens, and statistics. In addition he is the book's major photographer. He is the only person besides the editor who has a say in the actual production of the book. He doesn't sleep very often.

The Associate Editor is the Business Manager. He stalls the creditors, plays musical accounts with our money, and takes all the dribble from everybody trying to decide whether or not to buy pages in the book. It is his job to keep our financial heads from going under water and to verbally sell people on the book. Cruel and barbarous punishment to say the least.

For the Editor the book is a headache most of the time. It is his job to worry. He has to worry about everybody else doing their job as well as his own. He doubles as Staff Writer, Layout and Pasteup Clerk, Copy Editor, and All The Little Things That Have To Be Done Editor. He also appeases all the committee members, pays the staff, and with the help of the Sports Editor handling his own portion, produces the book.

Basically, it's been just the three of us, and we're exhausted.



WHAT DO THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, LOOK, LIFE, SOUTHERN CAMPUS, AND THE TITANIC ALL HAVE IN COMMON?
